665 Broadway Seaside, California 93955 Area Code 408: 394-6632

involving federal funds that is of concern to the affirmative action program because of compliance requirements.

Affirmative action program threatened

The Monterey County Affirmative Action Plan, crippled by the slack building economy and threatened with a massive reduction in its budget for next year, is fighting for its life.

The hometown plan, which is a federally-mandated program to raise the number of minorities in the building and construction trades, faces the prospect of having its proposed $50,000 budget for the 1975-76 fiscal year cut to $25,000 by county supervisors.

Board members, including representatives of the building trades unions, the minority community, and management, met last Thursday to discuss what could be done. The overriding concern expressed was that the program could not continue to function effectively with such a budget slash.

Nevertheless, Executive Director Sal Palacios told the boardmembers that, due to the slowed pace of the economy and few housing starts, the affirmative action plan hasn't been able to place as many young, minority trainees in apprentice positions as it would desire.

The problem is compounded, he informed the board, by the fact that the provisions of the affirmative action plan are not being enforced, particularly by the County of Monterey. The requirement for those contractors who do business with any publicly-funded agency is that the percentage of minority workers be equal to the percentage of minority persons in the community in which the job is being done. Palacios said a requirement that only 40 per cent of the funds coming to the affirmative action plan can go only for administration means that only about $9,000 would be available next year for the most crucial portion of the program.

There is a concern that the apprenticeship program, a vital part of the affirmative action program, will be transferred to some other program, such as the Neighborhood Youth Corps, to eliminate duplication of services. This would further trim the affirmative action budget, Palacios noted.

"The supervisors question the hometown plan when it's doing nothing," Palacios said.

Henry Jewell, a management representative on the board, said he felt it unfair that county officials were not cooperating in enforcement of the affirmative action plan, then using the lack of success of the plan as a basis for denying it proper funds.

"We sit on the threshold in the next six to seven months of $35 million in construction," said Russ Hansen, head of the Construction Trades Council of Monterey County, a union

Performing Arts Association presents first set of locally-produced plays

If art is good for the soul, then soul must certainly be good for art.

At least, that's one of the unwritten precepts behind the philosophy of the Seaside Performing Arts Association, which got its first locally produced and performed dramas before the public last week.

These were "Day of Absence" and "Happy Ending" by playwright Douglas Turner Ward, which were given last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Del Rey Theatre.

As director and overworked manager of the Seaside Performing Arts Association, Brad Vaughn, a counselor at Seaside High School, sees the enterprise as having not only the obvious cultural and esthetic values of the arts, but socially redemptive qualities as well.

"We're trying to establish a program and a facility for the citizens of the community for alternatives to crime and anti-social behavior," he said. "This is the greatest thing there is for kids who have never been out of Seaside to a live play!"

But, since its inception last August, the Seaside Performing Arts Association has been dependent upon too few people for too much volunteer work, and upon too few funds, to entertain bright prospects for the future.

In fact, things now look so bleak, that if something doesn't soon happen to help the group's financial picture, there may be no next year for the Seaside Performing Arts Association, Vaughn said.

The organization obtained a loan of $3,000 from the City of Seaside last year to launch its program of films, concerts and live performances at the Del Rey Theatre, with the concept in the minds of the city fathers that the building is an excellent potential civic center.

As a non-profit organization, the Seaside Performing Arts Association really doesn't expect to strike it rich; Vaughn just simply can't understand why "non-profit" has to mean the same thing as "bankrupt."

Certainly, no one could quibble with the objectives of the group, as outlined in a statement of goals drawn up by Vaughn:

--"Providing models of wholesome life experiences, as opposed to temptations to commit crime or unwholesome activities."

--"Teaching audiences, as well as performers, to appreciate art as an important segment of the life in their city."

--"To make the citizens know without a doubt that Seaside Performing Arts Association and the theater belong to them."

--"Close ties (must be drawn between the Seaside Performing Arts Association and the Seaside Art Commission, the City of Seaside, the public schools, private schools, churches and other organizations."

One simple, but astounding, fact that underscores in red the vast need for this type of program is the absence of an auditorium at Seaside High School, Vaughn noted. This, in a town literally seething with potential stage talent, seems to him to demand some outlet for the people's creative energies.

But the problem, which is hardly new to any community organization struggling to get a foothold and especially painful to one beginning in these uncertain economic times, is simply one of finances.

"The private sector, and the city, must come in and help, if we're to have the type of program we have now," Vaughn said. "We think this is the responsibility of the city."

There are about 150 persons of all ages, from high school age to middle age, involved with the Seaside Performing Arts Association, and Vaughn believes the potential value to the community of the program and the Del Rey Theatre has been tapped.

He'd like to see Monterey Peninsula College, the public schools, and the cities come and use the facility for a variety of purposes. And, in a real and very important sense, the whole undertaking is symbolic of the attention being given now in the arts to the values and experiences of people other than middle class, white, Americans, Vaughn believes.

The concept of the Del Rey Theatre as a community center entails a function better described as a poly-ethnic focal point for all the groups and interests of the Monterey Peninsula. One of the hottest offerings in the present location since the start of the program is Korean films, Vaughn noted. There have also been rock concerts and now, the first locally produced plays.

With the hopes of being able to keep the doors open long enough to see if the program will meet with wide enough acceptance to continue, Vaughn has asked the city for $20,000 for fiscal year 1975-76.

That request will be considered as part of the budget deliberations which go into the adoption of the budget in July. But the concern of Vaughn and others is more immediate: by this week, there is a good chance the entire program will have become defunct.

A remembrance of things past

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From The Seaside News-Sentinel
June 2, 1955

A building program is being drawn up providing for construction of a new permanent veterans' home in Seaside.

American Legion Post 591 officials are currently drawing up plans for a post home building program, and a complete report will be delivered in detail shortly to Legion members.

Possibilities are that the Veterans of Foreign Wars post here and the Legion will cooperate in erecting a center for their activities. This, however, is still in the planning stages.

The Legion is temporarily meeting in the Seaside Youth Center. The building formerly used for meetings, Mitchell Hall on Fremont Street, is currently being converted to office space.

Tentative plans were made by executive board members this past week for the coming year's program, including future assistance by the post to the Seaside Youth Center, and participation in Seaside's July 4th parade and celebration.

Fire Department Saves Child

Seaside Fire Department men were called out this past week to aid the breathing of a young child and an elderly woman in two emergencies.

Dolores Melimi, age 1½, and Mrs. Jennie Hastings, 67, were both helped by the quick work of local firemen.

Little Dolores, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Melimi of 1125 Wanda Avenue, had stopped breathing when firemen arrived, her mother reports. After emergency resuscitation was given, the child was given by firemen into the care of Dr. F. T. McDonald.

Dolores, one of five children in the Melimi family, is reported by her mother to be recovering from a severe cold. Mrs. Hastings, of 1030 Mingo Avenue, was attended by Dr. Fred Fry after firemen had given first aid with oxygen.

Traffic Violations Hit New High

A whopping 82 traffic tickets were handed out by Seaside police over the Memorial Day weekend as local law enforcement officials tried desperately to hold down the accident toll.

This is an all-time high in number of violators nabbed by the police department since Seaside's incorporation.

About three-fourths of the violators are charged with so-called "moving offenses," that is, speeding, reckless driving, and similar bad driving practices.

Result of the police crackdown was that no serious accidents occurred in the City of Seaside during the holidays, although Seaside residents were involved in several wrecks including one in which two men died.

City Budget Requests Total Almost $200,000

BUDGETS—of every type, shape and description—will occupy the chief attention of the Seaside City Council at its forthcoming meeting tonight.

Faced with the necessity of drawing up a fiscal program for the year 1955-56, the council will consider requests of $78,081.81 from the police department; $24,629 from the city clerk's office; $92,220 from the department of public works; $3,400 from the parks and recreation department, and $1,205 from the planning commission.

The department requests alone will thus make a total of $199,535. In other actions, the city council will have to officially ratify the appointment of Saul Weingarten as city attorney, and will take action to appoint a new city clerk to replace James Wilson, resigned.

Mrs. Bennison is Town's Oldest Republican Lady

Among its distinguished citizens, Seaside counts the senior member of its Republican Women's Club, Mrs. Ella Bennison of 1108 Noche Buena, who was the honored guest at a gathering in the home of Mrs. Alex Chernoff of 935 Noche Buena.

Born in New Haven, Conn., in 1862, Mrs. Bennison has been a resident of California since 1869 and a permanent resident of the Monterey Peninsula since 1908.

It will be six years in August since she came to be a resident of Seaside and a home owner here. With the background of a staunch Republican father and brothers, she crusaded for suffrage and has been a GOP voter ever since it was possible for her to be one.

Mrs. Bennison has an outstanding personal record. In addition to a musical career as a vocalist and organist, she has been associated with the Viavi Corp. as a lecturer on home hygiene. She enjoys the distinction of being an honorary member of that corporation.

Eight Little League Teams in Operation

Eight teams with a total of about 120 Seaside area boys are in the field this year for the annual Little League baseball season.

These small editions of big league players will be occupied with participation in a total of 72 games in two leagues, the American and the National. Games will run through the end of July.

In the American League are teams sponsored by the Monterey County Employees Association, coached by Ed Bivins; Granite Players, coached by Herb Rothstein; Whiskerinos, coached by T. M. Henry; and the Carpenters, coached by Dale Sutton.

Virgil Hansberry is umpire-in-chief for the American League. Mike O'Dea is president of the league, Dan Snell is vice president, and R. E. Lamm is secretary and treasurer.

Now water rate hikes, please!

(EDITORIAL)

After conducting a week of public hearings in Seaside on a proposed rate increase of 19 per cent for some 28,599 customers of California-American Water Co. on the Monterey Peninsula, the Public Utilities Commission is now taking the request under submission.

What that means is that more hearings will be held in other parts of the state where the water company is also asking for rate increases. Company-wide, Cal-Am is asking the state for permission to raise rates by about 20 per cent.

Those of us here on the Monterey Peninsula who attended the hearings last week in Seaside, and who gathered the mountains of material submitted by the company and by the P.U.C. into evidence have no way of knowing the merits of the proposed rate increase outside this area.

But one thing was manifestly clear after those hearings: Seaside residents probably will not tolerate any rate increase until the quality of water provided by Cal-Am is drastically improved.

A whole parade of Seaside residents testified to the abysmally poor water quality which many Seaside residents must tolerate. It was described variously as "filthy," "foul," and "sandy."

There is a separate, but not unrelated part of the total picture concerning the operations of Cal-Am in its Monterey service area, and that is the still-unresolved question of adequacy of water supplies.

For nearly two years, a series of public hearings has been conducted—also by the Public Utilities Commission and also in Seaside city hall—into that question. An interim order, which has not attained the status of being nearly permanent, was put into effect by the state agency banning most new water hook-ups by Cal-Am until that question of the availability of water supplies was resolved.

There is a good possibility that the P.U.C., which also has under advisement the issue of water supplies, may force Cal-Am to come up with a feasible plan for the construction of a new dam in the upper Carmel Valley area before the water starts to flow again to new customers.

But, until that question is answered definitely and the public knows what effect the solution will have on all customers of the Monterey Peninsula, any consideration of rate increases should be held in abeyance.

When the fact of inferior water quality in the Seaside area is added to the equation, there can be no question that any rate increase to Cal-Am must be delayed until both the matter of water supplies and water quality are dealt with to the satisfaction of the consuming public.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

Recently, Mel Mason, our Black Student Union Advisor at Monterey Peninsula College, wrote a letter to the Post complaining about the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District's policies of (1) allowing only white-washed blacks to retain administrative positions, and (2) using those same blacks to destroy the lives and aspirations of Black students. For this, Mason has been ridiculed and scorned.

What many people do not realize is that Mason has been leading a fight to protect the jobs of minorities within MPUSD. Now we have been informed that two minority teachers—one black, the other Filipino—are being dismissed from Ord Terrace School.

Mason is actively involved in preventing this from happening. A newly-hired black female assistant principal at a local junior high school has been asked to leave the school district, while at the same time a black female dean of students at a local junior high school has been asked to vacate her position.

MPUSD's excuse for this is the drop in enrollment in the district. Our question then is why must only blacks and minorities be eliminated when this situation occurs? As president of the Black Student Union at Monterey Peninsula College I hereby declare support of Mason in his fight to end the elimination of quality black educators in MPUSD.

Mason has often told us of the institutionalized racism that pervades MPUSD and that the only blacks that can retain positions within the district are those blacks that are white-washed and traitorous to the cause of their own people. We see that Mason has not erred in his analysis.

Mason has also taught us that ultimate power within the districts lies in the hands of parents—in this case, black parents. So, on behalf of the BSU, I would like to strongly urge black parents to "seize the time" and not allow the systematic elimination of black educators within MPUSD to continue.

Frank Sherman, President

Dear Editor:

Recent letters to the editor have been highly critical of the administration at Monterey High School. I feel it is very unfortunate that some members of the community have taken this avenue to air their complaints.

Local school and district office staff, as well as the Board of Education have always been open and receptive to concerns. We also feel that we have a very fine administrative staff.

Some problems are difficult, it is not always possible to make everyone happy. Our basic philosophy is what is good for students and the educational program. If you have concerns please give us the courtesy of trying to solve your problems.

JAMES C. HARRISON
Superintendent,
Monterey Peninsula
Unified School District

response was not clear because a number of misunderstandings have occurred: (1) The board has not granted any salary increases to any employee for next year. Because of a loss of $850,000 in federal funds, the Board is facing a very difficult budget for next year and must eliminate $600,000 out of this year's present operating level in order to balance the budget.

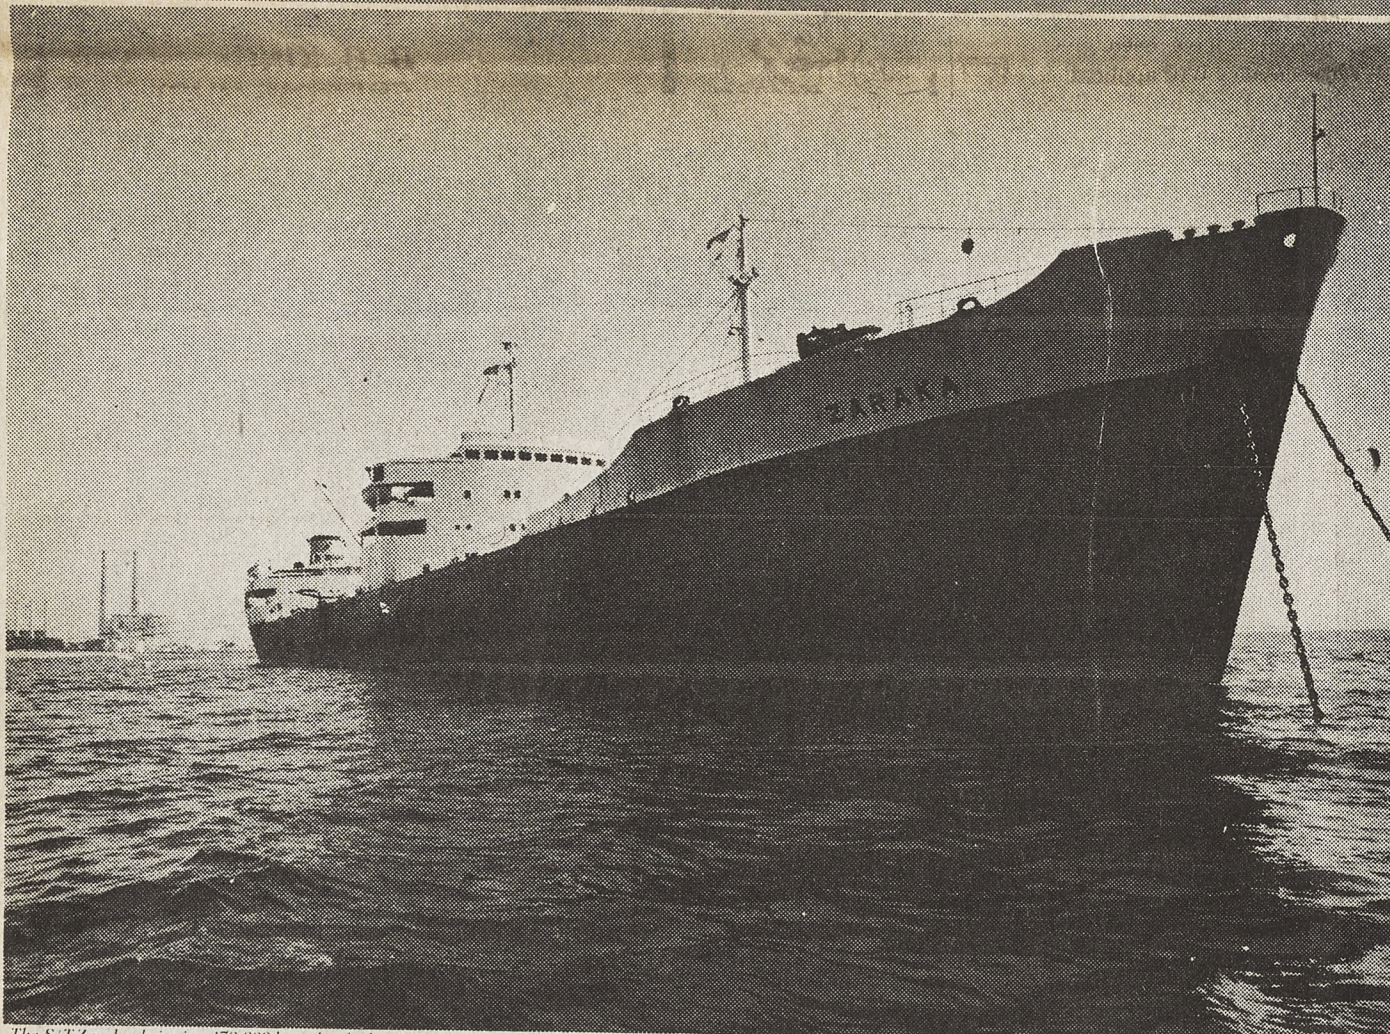

(2) Administrators' salary increases will be considered along with increases for other comparable districts. It is our wish to continue that practice.

The Board of Education held a special meeting on the budget at 5 p.m. on Friday, May 30. The purpose of this meeting was twofold: (1) To spend additional time considering what reductions must be made for next year; and (2) to point out to the local citizens some of the problems of school finance and ask them to write their state legislators and the Governor urging their support of SB 220 which would provide approximately $550,000 in new revenue.

President

Dear Editor:

A number of letters to the editor have appeared regarding the Leadership Council proposal on salaries. Evidently the board's

The S.T. Zaraka, bringing 170,000 barrels of oil to PG&E's Moss Landing power plant, bringing oil to generate electricity for homes and industry all over Northern and Central California. The high cost of foreign low-sulfur oil is one reason your electric bill is up.

THIS IS WHAT KEEPS THE LIGHTS ON.

The Zaraka's cargo is high-cost foreign oil. It's needed to generate much of the electricity you use.

There's cheaper oil available from U.S. sources. But because of its higher sulfur content, environmental restrictions don't permit its use. To meet your electric needs, PG&E must charter tankers to bring in this expensive low-sulfur oil from abroad.

In 1970, we needed about one million barrels a year. Since then, the U.S. Government curtailed huge amounts of our natural gas supply by reallocation to other areas, and the Canadian Government refused to permit the export of another large amount of gas we had under contract there. To take the place of gas in our electric generating plants, our oil burn and storage requirements last year jumped to more than 15 million barrels.

During the same period, the average price of the oil we bought went up from about $2.50 a barrel to about $15 a barrel. PG&E's 1970 oil bill was less than $2 million. In 1974 it was $228 million.

Every electric rate increase granted PG&E by the California Public Utilities Commission since 1971 has been to offset higher costs of fuel oil and natural gas to generate electricity.

We don't like to ask for these rate increases. But we have no choice. Our responsibility is to keep an adequate, reliable supply of electricity flowing into homes, businesses and factories.

Meanwhile, we're doing all we can to hold down our costs and to keep your PG&E bill as low as possible. You can help lower your bill, too, by using energy wisely.

Peninsula youth register for summer employment

The Student Employment Service program of the Monterey Peninsula reported this week that more than 900 local students ages 16-22 are registered for summer employment.

Loren Smith, President of SES, noted that so far this year, placement of students in after-school and weekend work remains about the same as previous years.

The federal cutbacks again this year at Peninsula military installations may mean a reduction of job openings under the youth opportunity program for students who meet the disadvantaged criteria. However there are other federal programs available to the disadvantaged youth.

The SES assists Monterey Peninsula employers by maintaining a central location where job orders for students may be placed and employers provided with student workers who have registered for work. The students have been interviewed, and are screened for job referral and only those who meet employers specifications are referred for selection.

There are 395 students living in the Seaside area who are registered for work. Last year SES provided 359 jobs for Seaside area students.

Phyllis Howard, executive director of SES, said "students who are too selective in the kind of summer work they will accept will have less opportunity for employment and because of higher unemployment in the area adult workers will be competing with the young people for the better pay and interesting opportunities.

The greatest demand for student help will be in the domestic and service occupations. Due to the current economy, SES hopes that the young people seeking work will be realistic about the kind of work and wages offered.

To assist the students in obtaining summer jobs, the SES committee is going to depend on local employers to provide jobs. Employers in the community will be contacted and asked to help in providing summer jobs.

The SES is a non-profit community project which has operated since 1959 for the purpose of serving local students who need assistance in obtaining jobs and providing service to employers who need help. Service is provided at no cost to the student or employer. Employers who are interested in hiring a student full or part-time during the summer are asked to call 373-0143, or visit the SES office at 480 Webster St., Monterey.

Dedevlopment agency accepts offer

The Seaside Redevelopment Agency has accepted an offer to purchase a parcel of land in the Gateway Project, and will hold a hearing on the matter next month.

The offer of 18,075 came from Jack T. Converse for a parcel of land already included in the project area. In other business, the agency approved the expenditure of $176 for a security alarm maintenance and rental contract.

The agency approved the expenditure of not more than $8,000 for the 1975-76 fiscal year for legal services to Saul M. Weingarten, and not more than $5,000 for financial consulting services.

Both budget items will again be reviewed when the agency takes formal action to approve the budget for the coming fiscal year.

A motion to extend the Neighborhood Development Program into its fifth year, to March 31, was also approved to enable the executive director to resolve some procedural problems with an already-started project.

Pilot rehabilitation programs

The Monterey Peninsula Youth Project, upon request from the Monterey County Sheriff's Department and the Monterey County Health Department, has implemented two pilot rehabilitation and treatment programs in the county's correctional institutions.

A drug detoxification program has been started in the Monterey County Jail through the County Health Department and under the direction of Dr. Robert Bowersox. This program provides for the symptomatic treatment for the withdrawal from heroin and related drugs.

The Monterey Peninsula Youth Project is assisting in the detoxification process by providing counseling to the residents of the jail and the development of treatment plans. This program was implemented on request of Sheriff Jack Davenport to take early steps in assisting residents of the jail to begin their rehabilitation process.

The Monterey Peninsula Youth Project's heroin detoxification clinic provides staff in a cooperative effort with the County Health Department and Captain Shultz and Lieutenant Brown of the Sheriff's Department, to implement this pilot project.

The second pilot project currently being implemented, at the request of the Sheriff's Department and Captain McIntire of the Monterey County Rehabilitation Facility, is to provide for on-going treatment to residents of the jail who have drug related problems. The program consists of weekly counseling and therapy groups conducted by the staff of the Monterey Peninsula Youth Project's outpatient-drug-free clinic.

The Youth Project staff works closely with the counseling staff at the rehabilitation facility. The primary objectives of the program are: (1) to continue with treatment after the drug detoxification process in the jail; (2) to begin to explore with the residents the reasons for their drug abuse problems and related life styles; and (3) to establish a liaison with the Monterey Peninsula Youth Project's drug abuse treatment programs and other community resources available to the residents upon their release.

County food supplement program is expanded

The new county health service providing food supplements for women, infants and children has been expanded.

The program aims to help youngsters grow strong and healthy, and decrease the incidence of birth defects and physical handicaps caused by poor diet. Additional clinics are scheduled by the Monterey County Health Department to accommodate the increased number of persons eligible for free WIC food coupons.

These coupons are exchangeable at local stores for eggs, cheese, milk, juices and other food items essential to good health. Under the guidelines established by the U.S.

Department of Agriculture, a medical examiner must screen each applicant and certify a need for WIC food supplements. Local private physicians and attending staff in existing clinics at Natividad Medical Center and the health department have been given the necessary WIC application cards and can certify their eligible patients. Others who are not now under private physician care can obtain the health check-up at special health department WIC clinics are no charge. Special arrangements have been made by the WIC program to make the food coupons available immediately after presentation of a completed application form signed by the examining physician. For further information or an appointment for a health check-up call the Monterey County Health Department 424-7627, 373-0111, 385-4824. BBQ SAFETY HINTS Danger lurks in even the most peaceful surroundings and many backyard cookouts have ended in tragedy because the chef ignored common-sense safety rules.

Place your barbecue grill out in the open, away from anything flammable. Make certain it has sound footing and is away from primary activity areas but is set up to allow room to work. Safe grill equipment is important so be sure your forks, tongs and spatulas have long handles. Use heavy glove-style potholders and dress in a non-flammable apron. Avoid loose flapping clothing that might catch fire.

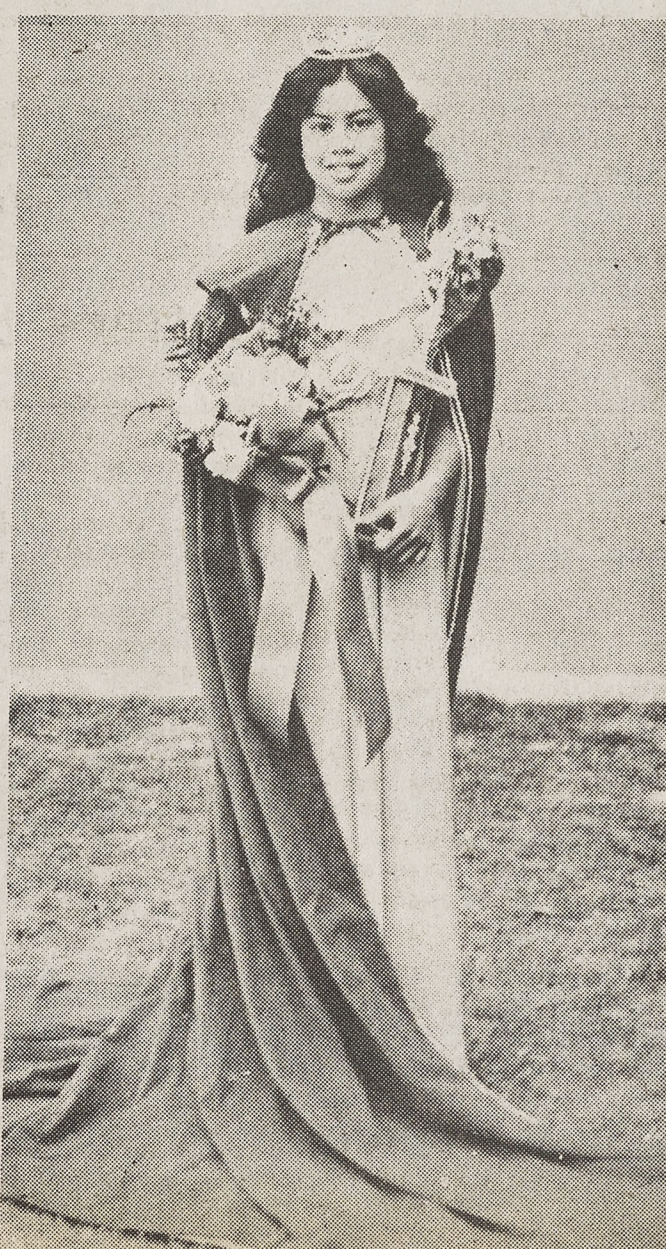

Keep children and pets away from the grill, and never remove the grate until it is cool. Don't dump out coals until they are completely extinguished, and don't leave them without adult supervision after the barbecue is finished.

If a sudden change in weather occurs, move your cookout to a protected area, but never barbecue in a garage or other enclosed space unless it is ventilated adequately, because glowing coals will produce deadly concentrations of carbon monoxide.

member of the board. "I can't be led to believe that the answer is to put someone on the CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) payroll and then, when the funds are gone, to take them off."

Palacios said the affirmative action program has placed five men on the CETA payroll, but the program receives no official credit; the measure of its effectiveness is the numbers of men placed in job slots with private industry. "If we're going to do the job we're geared to do, we must have an administration," Hansen said, referring to the budget cutbacks.

The consensus of the board was that a strong appeal must be made to supervisors when May 9 in the school's multi-use they consider the affirmative action budget Tuesday, June 10 at the county courthouse in Salinas.

"The contracts being let by the county don't answer the affirmative action needs," Jewell observed. "Why doesn't the county enforce this? We are being cut down by $25,000 in our budget because we can't do our job, and we can't do our job because the county is hampering us."

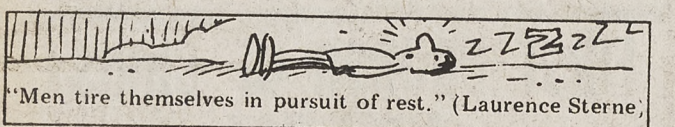

Sweetheart Dance held at King Junior High

Martin Luther King Junior High held its annual Sweetheart Dance on Friday, May 9 in the school's multi-use room. The coronation ceremony proceeded the dance. Cynthia Harris, student body president, stressed the significance of the title "Sweetheart of King," to those in attendance. The coronation commentators were Kim Batiste, Marianne Hopkins and Lillian DeSoto.

The following young ladies were selected from the various organizations on campus to compete for the title, "Sweetheart of King": Theresa Faller escorted by Alex Guerrero-Honor Society, Sharon Connors escorted by James Allen-Cultural Enrichment Program, Laura Ann Bonner escorted by Claudius Mercader-Human Relations Team, Jeannette Taylor escorted by Larry Hooks-Heshima, Jeanette Padilly escorted by George Sayre-French Club.

Theresa Faller captured the title King's Sweetheart for the 1975-76 school year. She was crowned by our former Sweetheart Lucille Washington Lucille was escorted by Ezra Burdix. Sharon Connors was crowned "Princess of King" for the 1975-76 school year by former Princess, Joy Greenwell. Joy was escorted by Christopher Ware. Jeannette Lacuata and Burrage Singleton served as attendants.

Military plans in south county threaten Mission San Antonio

As the nation begins the celebration of its bicentennial, an historical monument which is dated five years earlier (1771) is threatened with urban sprawl.

Old Mission San Antonio, Jolon, in Monterey County is the only mission which retains its rural setting, almost unspoiled by any taint of urbanization.

Founded by Padre Junipero Serra and restored with great effort and expense by the Hearst Foundation and the Franciscan Fathers, it stands as a living memorial to California's past in a way unequaled by any other state monument. It is one of the very few places in the country where one may turn back the pages of history for 200 years.

The United States Army, whose local commanders have through the years been kind and helpful to the Padres at the mission, is threatening to encompass it.

The mission is surrounded by the Hunter Liggett Military Reservation, and stands on a scant 50 acres near the headquarters of that reservation. The reservation has 170,000 acres which have, up to now, been used as a maneuvering grounds and for training purposes, with some housekeeping troops.

Utilizing the main ranch buildings acquired from the Hearst Sunnycal Land and Cattle Co., before World War II, the Army has added little in the way of permanent buildings since then. This has preserved the mission in its original site, uncrowded by buildings and roads, in the same setting it has had for 205 years - unspoiled and lovely, the one remaining jewel of primitive California history.

The plan that threatens the mission is a master plan for the HLMR which was hatched in Washington in 1965. The existence of the plan was confirmed by Congressman Burt Talcott, who said it had the approval of the Secretary of the Army. During the years, various parts of the 87 million dollar project have been implemented as funds became available. This year, some 14 million dollars have been appropriated.

The construction will include a 13,000 square foot computer building, a 7,500 square foot experimentation development lab, a 350 seat theatre, a swimming pool, auto crafts shop, an education center, post exchange, a five barracks complex and mess hall. All of this construction is at some distance from the mission and is not of great danger to its rural setting.

Included in the master plan is a housing complex for military dependents to be located behind the mission. This will include a clubhouse, church, streets, lighting, sewers, access roads, a grade school, junior high school, a day care center for children.

In short, a small city is envisioned adjacent to the mission, across a small creek. Even though action on this section of the plan is more than five years away, according to one Army spokesman, the mission Padres are deeply concerned for the loss of the main charm of Mission San Antonio as the only mission still visible as it was years ago when California was young.

Army spokesmen say the buildings will not affect the mission. The military establishment has been a friend and neighbor to the mission at all times, and the Padres have expressed their sincere friendship and regard to and for the local commanders. Plans made 3,000 miles away in Washington by people who know little of California's heritage could prove a disastrous despoiling of the last example of a mission in its primitive condition.

Maj. Gen. Ross at Fort Ord has said that the Army continually re-assesses plans such as that pertaining to HLMR. The Padres and the people of the surrounding area are happy to see HMLR develop. The concern is that it develop in such a way as to not damage the historic charm of Old Mission San Antonio de Padua, last pure link to California's glorious mission period.

SOME 240 senior citizens received doughnuts, cookies, water pitchers with glasses, pens, calenders, ash trays and matches, donated by Eureka Federal Savings of Seaside, Making the presentation were (from left) Judy Hildon, E.F.S. and Bill Sosic Manager of E.F.S. Receiving the gifts was Irma Wolovsky, receptionist and Senior Aid of the Adult Senior Citizens Center. (Perkins photo).

Donald Hill Directs Seaside Chamber

Donald Hill has been appointed executive director of the Seaside Chamber of Commerce effective June 1.

California State University, Fresno. He gained experience in recruiting, tours, public speaking, press releases and special event planning in his former position at Valley Medical Center of Fresno. At

VMC he was also managing editor of the publication "The VMC News."

Hill and his wife will be making their home in Seaside.

Students hold a bicycle rally on Monterey

The Associated Students of Monterey Peninsula College presented a two-day bicycle awareness program with a "Bike Rally" last Saturday at the Pacific Grove City Hall and a "Community Bike Day" Sunday, in the MPC Student Center.

The schedule of events for the rally included stops at the Monterey City Hall at 10:30 a.m. and at the Seaside City Hall to present petitions at noon.

The petition calls for the endorsement of bike paths on the Monterey Peninsula by city officials and for their planning of peninsula-wide linkage of bicycle paths. Monterey has already started a bike path program.

After the presentation at the Seaside City Hall, riders returned to El Estero Park in Monterey and participated in an ASMPCC sponsored picnic where bread, cheese, fruit and soft drinks were made available to rally participants.

The "Community Bike Day" featured a series of bicycle workshops, including bike safety, regulations, repair, bike clubs, theft prevention, bicycle touring and bike displays, and environmental aspects.

The workshops were followed by panel discussions on the issue of local bike paths from many angles. The panel included a representative from Assemblyman Frank Murphy's office, a medical doctor who spoke about bicycle health, Monterey City Planner Ken Gregory and Monterey County Supervisor Roger Poyner.

CRAFTY IDEAS

Do It Yourself Decorating

Planning a party, a bazaar, a festive occasion? Don't just decorate—create!

All you need to prepare personally put together parties is a few household items such as string, a bunch of balloons and papier-mache paste made of equal parts of cold water and Niagara instant laundry starch allowed to stand and thicken for a few minutes.

For a real ball, soak some string, cord, yarn, twine, ribbons, ric-rac or what have you in the papier-mache paste and wrap it around blown-up balloons in a crisscross pattern.

LAW IN ACTION

PRODUCTS LIABILITY

"Right on with good workmanship," said Charlie.

Charlie bought a small apartment house. It was one of several that a builder constructed in a shopping area. It was a bad investment. The walls cracked, the floors sank and the workmanship was bad. Charlie sued the builder. The builder's defense was that the apartments were built according to code and consistent with the standards of that area. There were no guarantees of workmanship or materials, he said.

The Supreme Court ruled that there was liability on the builder even without proof that the builder was negligent. There is "strict liability" without proof of negligence.

A buyer must give notice of any defects within a reasonable time after he discovers them in order to hold the builder liable.

The law has gone a long way in imposing strict liability for "Products." When a manufacturer puts out a product, he will be strictly liable if the item is defective. Injuries and damages from products must be borne by the manufacturers who put their defective products on the market.

Originally this rule did not apply to sales of real property; only to goods. One case involved a builder-developer of mass-produced homes. The radiant heating was defectively installed. The heating system went out some years later, after the home had been resold through several owners. The home builder was still liable—the product was defective. The liability is strict even without proof of negligence. Where homes were built on unstable landfill, the developer who created the problem is liable for the defective lots. He mass-produced the lots — a product. So, too, is the person who defectively designed a water system in several homes. The water system is a "product."

In another recent case, a home buyer in a subdivision sued the soil engineer who tested the lot. It turned out that the home cracked, resulting from instability of the land. The court ruled that there was no strict "products liability." The soil engineer

Physician To Speak On Heart Attack Factors

The President of the Central Mission Trails Heart Association, Dr. E. John Kennedy will be the featured speaker at the 11th Annual Dinner Meeting of the association. Heart volunteers and other interested members of the public are invited to attend. Mailed announcements have been sent to persons in Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito Counties. Lawrence Bemis of Pebble Beach, Chairman of the association's annual meeting planning committee, announced that Kennedy's talk will highlight the meeting the evening of June 4 at the La Canada Golf Club, Carmel Valley. He will speak on the "Type C Personality."

Dr. Kennedy is a graduate of the University of Iowa and is in private practice as an internist in Monterey. He is an associate professor at the Naval Postgraduate School and teaches aviation safety. The dinner on June 4 is an official function of the Central Mission Trails Heart Association and members of the public can arrange to attend by contacting the Heart office, 600 South Main St., Salinas, 424-6007. Bemis said that in addition to the speech by Kennedy the dinner will include awards to volunteers for achievements in heart disease control programs and fund raising. Officers for the coming year will be elected and installed. A major revision of the by-laws will be presented by the by-laws committee and considered for adoption by the membership. The changes are designed to result in better community services, a stronger organizational structure, and compatibility with the national organization, the American Heart Association.
